ABOUT

Large flat-weave dhurrie carpet, Northern India (likely Punjab region), circa 1900. Woven in cotton using a flat-weave technique. The design consists of a repeating geometric medallion pattern arranged on a yellow-gold ground, with indigo, purple, and red detailing.

This type of carpet belongs to the tradition of geometric dhurries, commonly produced in northern India for both domestic and architectural use. The carpet is in good antique condition, with wear consistent with age and use.
537 x 363cm
